THE HEDGEHOG'S MODE OF DEFENCE .- The hedgehog is one of the best protected of living animals. Marching securely under the guardian- PURE DRUGS and MEDICINES, CHEMICALS, ship of its thorn-spiked armor, it reeks little of any foe save man. . . . The formidable array of bristling spines with which the back is more or less covered offers a cheval-de-frise of sharp spikes toward any animal that may present itself as an enemy. Another peculiarity is the power posses-sed by these creatures of rolling themselves into a round ball, by placing the head on the breast. drawing up the legs, and curling the body firmly round the members. By this posture the hedge-hogs render themselves invulnerable to almost any animal that may attack them. When in this curious attitude the hedgehog cannot be unrolled by main force, as long as any life remains in the body for there is an enormously developed muscle with a very thick margin, which spreads over the back and round the sides, and which, when contracted holds the creature in so firm an embrace that it will be torn in pieces rather than yield its point. Protected by this defence the hedgehog is enabled to throw itself from considerable heights, to curl itself into a ball as it descends, and to reach the ground without suffering any harm from its fall. A hedgehog has been seen repeatedly to throw itself from a wall some twelve or fourteen feet in height, and to fall upon the hard ground without appearing to be even inconvenienced by its tumble. On reaching the ground it would unroll itself and trot off with perfect unconcern .- Popular Science Monthly.
